

Your Name

One line of positioning: current role, field, or status

Email: you@example.com

GitHub: <https://github.com/your-username>

Website: <https://www.example.com>

Two or three sentences stating who you are, what you have done, and what you are looking for. Written in the third person and kept to a single paragraph, it gives a reader who will not read further something to take away. Delete it if your field does not expect one.

EDUCATION

Earlier Institution Name, City, Country 2010 – 2018

Qualification and the number of subjects it covered

EXPERIENCE

Position or Project Title City, Country

Role or Title January 2024 – December 2024

- State what you did, the method or tool you used, and the outcome it produced. One sentence of roughly this length keeps the entry to a predictable height, which is what makes the rhythm visible.

Position or Project Title City, Country

Role or Title May 2023 – December 2023

- A second entry, so the entry-to-entry gap has something to separate. Note that nothing between these two entries creates space except `\cventrygap`.

A Title Long Enough To Wrap Onto

A Second Line

Role or Title City, Country

May 2022 – April 2023

- A header may itself span two lines; the indented continuation above shows the convention. The list gap still measures from the end of the whole header block.

SELECTED PROJECTS

project_name (https://github.com/your-username/project_name)

- Describe what the project does, the architecture or technique behind it, and what makes it non-trivial. Underscores in a project name need escaping as `_` outside `\url{}`.

another_project [Private Repository] (work in progress)

- A bracketed annotation after the name is the place for status – private, archived, in progress – so the reader is not left clicking a dead link.

HONOURS, AWARDS AND SCHOLARSHIPS

- Award or Scholarship Name 2023, 2024
- Award Name, Granting Body 5,000 CUR, 2023
- A longer award name that runs far enough along the line to sit across two lines, with the annotation on the second 2,500 CUR, 2022
- Award or Scholarship Name 1,000 CUR, 2022

SKILLS

- Technical: The languages, libraries, and environments you actually work in, written as a comma-separated run rather than a rated list.
- Domain: Subject-matter areas, methods, or techniques specific to your field.
- Tools: Software, platforms, and instruments you use routinely.

SELECTED COURSES

- A Course Title That Wraps (Institution, 2024)
- Course Title (Institution, 2024)
- Course Title (Institution, 2024)
- Course Title (Institution, 2023)
- Course Title (Institution, 2023)
- Course Title (Institution, 2023)
- Course Title (Institution, 2022)

ADDITIONAL EXPERIENCE

- Teaching: What you taught, to whom, and at what level. 2020 – 2022
- Professional development: A course, bootcamp, or programme worth naming. 2022
- Volunteering:
 - One line per activity, kept short enough to fit a single line where possible.
 - A second activity.
 - A third activity, phrased in the same grammatical form as the others.

INTERESTS

- An area of interest
- Another area of interest
- A third, with a parenthetical qualifier if one is useful (context, duration, or level)
- A fourth
